

South Whidbey Tilth Community Produce Booth

Welcome Community Farmers and Gardeners

The South Whidbey Tilth Farmers' Market has a Community Produce Booth to provide a venue for people in our community who are not regular vendors to sell produce. Having some of your garden's abundance also broadens the variety and volume we can offer our customers.

During the Sunday market, the Community Produce Booth volunteer sells your produce for you. You keep 75% of the proceeds, the booth volunteer gets 15%, and Tilth gets 10%. If you don't want the proceeds from the sale of your produce, you may choose to donate them to Tilth.

Here's how to participate:

1. Bring your produce to the Community Produce Booth at Tilth between 10 and 10:45 a.m. on the day of the market. We have some coolers to protect produce from wilting and pests, or you can bring your own labeled cooler. Produce must be clean, disease-free and grown with only approved organic pesticides and fertilizers. South Whidbey Tilth carries liability insurance for its activities, but not for the products or activities of individual participants. If a customer becomes ill or injured from your product, you could be sued independently. If you have a Homeowner's insurance policy, you can check with your agent to see if coverage for your product can be added to it. See the market manager for details.
2. Please fill out the sign-up sheet, listing each type of produce (please include the variety, if possible, especially for garden starts), the quantity, price, organic growing methods or not and any comments that you wish the volunteer to convey to potential customers. Include your contact information.
3. Payment: Please bring an envelope for the volunteer to hold your earnings and provide your mailing address so a check can be mailed to you. Alternatively, you can pick up your payment by prior arrangement.

Consider becoming a volunteer in the Community Produce Booth for a few hours on an occasional Sunday. You'd earn 15% of what is sold. To volunteer, contact market@southwhidbeytilth.org.
